AUTUMN SOWING

Many of the more interesting and delightful of the rarer flowers and plants have been considered difficult from seed, and some of them are really rather slow when the sowing is made in spring or summer, unless very special precautions are taken. This is because such seeds require a period of exposure too low, but not necessarily freezing, temperatures to put them in shape to germinate. Such seeds if sown in late autumn in open ground seed beds or in cold frames, the beds being mulched with straw or litter during the winter months, will usually come up quite strongly in the spring. In general, most tree and shrub seeds are benefitted by autumn sowing. This includes the pines and other evergreens, the woody vines, wild roses and the like. A great many kinds of lilies also are helped although seeds of certain easier species may just as well be sown in early spring. Sprouting of iris seeds is undoubtedly facilitated by this late sowing, but spring sowing will also give fair results with these.

Some of the other seeds that do well with autumn sowing are Anemone, Wintergreen, Bearberry, Scilla (except S. Peruviana), Helleborus, Arisaema, Arum, Hyacinth, Stenanthium, Fritillaria, Erythronium, Colchicum, Crocus, Albizzia, Trillium, Peony, Trailing Arbutus, Tulip, Narcissus, Muscari, Chionodoxa, Puschkinia, Eranthis, Polygonatum, Jeffersonia, Camassia, Hemerocallis, Funkia, Paradisea, Phlox, Mertensia, Gentian, Ixiolirion, Cytissus, Crataegus, and the like. All of these are described in variety in my General Catalog No. 19, sent gladly on request.

Please understand that the listed kinds above are not necessarily sown in Autumn. It is simply that there is some gain in quicker and easier germinating when so handled. The list is not exhaustive. There are many other varieties in my catalog that may be sown at least as well in the fall as in the spring.

Sowing may be done just as long as the ground can be worked. In the North this usually means October, November or December, but in regions with open winters, sowings may also be made in January and February.

TRUE WILD FLOWER BLEND

Here are seeds of rare and hardy wild flowers, of shadeland bulbs, and of fitting low-growing shrubs, a marvelous blend, and all kinds that will colonize in open woodland, on rocky slope, in field or meadow, and even along the roadside. For this mixture are chosen sorts that will germinate particularly well when sown in autumn. Some of them are by their very nature a bit slow in coming, but eventually they will add a full quota of beauty to their corner, a beauty that will persist, if undisturbed, even for generations. For maximum results sow seeds in beds and later transplant, but they may also be scattered broadcast where they are to remain. Autumn Planted Bulbs

Bulbs are not prepaid, and will be sent express collect unless allowance for postage accompanies order. If desired by mail, add 5% east of Pittsburgh, 10% to the Mississippi, and 15% west of the river, to cover postage and packing.

AMERICAN GROWN TULIPS

The bulbs offered are "B" size. This is a size smaller than the usual Holland grown stock, but the bulbs are hard and solid, and almost every one of them will give a good flower. They are fully acclimated and will bloom earlier than the same varieties direct from Holland. Also, being smaller they will give good results without digging and dividing for at least a year longer, and a further advantage is that the price is materially less.

PLEASE NOTE—I do not supply "A" size Tulips, these being reserved for propagation, but I have size "C" bulbs, some of which will flower now, practically all next year. Write for special prices on this size.

Darwin Blend—All of the possible Darwin colorings, long stemmed and large flowered. 25 for 60c; 100 for $1.75; 250 for $3.50.

Pink and Rose Blend—A blend for those who like dainty color harmonies; salmon, deep pure pink, soft rose, and the varied pinks of the Azalea, with hues of richer rose and strawberry, deepening almost to cherry. 25 for 60c; 100 for $1.75; 250 for $3.50.

Peerless Tulip Blend—This is about the finest blend of tall growing, large flowering tulips that one could possibly make up. It is really a trial ground mixture of Darwin, Breeder and Cottage Tulips, classes that flower at the same time and grow to about the same height, differing only in technical characteristics. More than one hundred choicest named sorts, grown separately, are blended here, to give a proper balance of the various colors. The range is from cream, primrose and golden yellow, to bronze, orange and coffee brown; from palest flesh, through salmon pink to strawberry, rose, scarlet and maroon. Then there are all the soft lavender, clear blue, smoky violet, and rich purple varieties, beside others fantastically marbled and striped. 25 for 50c; 100 for $1.50; 250 for $3.00; 1000 for $11.50.

THE PLUME HYACINTH

Muscari Plumosus—I am assured of a supply this season of the rare and beautiful Plume Hyacinth. In this most unusual variety the individual florets are transformed into fluffy lilac-shred tassels of delightfully informal and graceful habit. The stems are long enough for effective cutting, and in garden, border or rockery the Plume Hyacinth gives an interesting variety. 3 for 25c; 10 for 70c; 25 for $1.50.

SPRING STAR FLOWER

TRITELIA COERULEA. One of the most easiest grown, freest flowering and most delightful of bulbs. It is hardy without protection here, but further north might need mulching. Also it forces very readily and owing to the habit of repeated bloom, a pot of it will be appreciated in the window garden. The flowers vary from soft blue suffusions to deep indigo. First size bulbs, 4 for 25c; 10 for 50c; 25 for $1.00.

CALOCHORTUS BLEND

Called Butterfly Tulips, but really there is only a faint suggestion of Tulip about them. In habit, form and coloring, they are wholly individual and as wholly delightful. Among them they show the hues of the rainbow in rare blendings, bandings and blotchings. They are hardy, but in exposed locations give them a mulching of straw or leaves. 4 for 25c; 10 for 50c; 25 for $1.00.

MUSCARI HEAVENLY BLUE

An absolutely hardy Grape Hyacinth. Wonderful for the rockery, the border, or for naturalizing. Will give great splashes of sheer blue for many radiant spring weeks. Selected Planting Stock sizes, much will flower second year, most of it the third. 100 for 25c; 250 for 50c; 1000 for $1.50; 5000 for $6.00. Plant it in quantity in open woodland, meadow, shrubbery border, or naturalize in the lawn.
